

December 26, 2012

The restaurant scene in D.C. is pretty pathetic in my area - Penn Quarter. After 3 years here I can safely say that the only saving grace are the food trucks - while they are far from perfect and many of them are overpriced, unduly restricting them is wrong-headed. Sidewalk width is hardly an issue if the vendors simply ask their patrons to line up parallel to the street.

Andrew Ingersoll