Dear Helder Gil,

I urge the District of Columbia to enforce new rules requiring adequate sidewalk clearance for operating food trucks.

I frequently walk from the Farragut West metro station on Connecticut Avenue to M street. At noontime it is almost impossible to get past the crowd of people waiting to be served by the line of food trucks.

I think the food trucks should be banned from that location, or the sidewalk should be closed for thru pedestrians at that time.

Sincerely,

A Ross Johnson
