

November 8, 2012

I believe that any regulations imposed upon food trucks should not inhibit their ability to serve food at the already popular public spaces in which they already exist. Anything else will both hurt the economy and take away popular lunch options for residents and workers in the District of Columbia.

Thank you.

Jonathan Daniels