I'm writing to express my opposition to the proposed rule that would limit food trucks to two locations in DC. I understand that DDOT can make exceptions to the rule, but the rule should be written explicitly to allow food trucks in more locations, rather than relying on the good intentions of current officials. Officials move on to other jobs, and the regulations should not be written in such a way that a change of position could dramatically change their implementation. I work in Judiciary Square and appreciate the food trucks that occasionally come to Chinatown and Union Station - they open up my lunch options, and I like supporting small business owners and entrepreneurs. Please rewrite the rule to clearly allow food trucks to set up in more locations throughout DC.

Thank you.

Best,
